Nearly seven years after the Downtown Data Center (DDC) opened, interest in one of the university's better-kept secrets still hasn't waned. On February 19, a group of UIT leadership gave U administrators a tour of the facility.

UIT infrastructure updates: new U Health center, residence hall

If it seems like there's always construction on U properties, well, there is — much of which is necessary to keep up with the needs and goals of the university and its systems. For these projects, UIT is responsible for coordinating the design, construction, and implementation of IT infrastructure in each building.
